Anybody who knows me will tell you the same thing: I get what I want. Whether it’s food, being held, my binky, you name it—if I decide I’d like it, you damn well better believe I don’t rest until I get it, one way or another. And from the very second I saw those blue and red detergent pods come out of that shopping bag last week, I knew immediately that, come hell or high water, I would eat one of those things.

So with God as my witness, I swear to you: I’m going to find that container of multicolored pods, I’m going to take one out, I’m going to shove it in my mouth, and I’m going to
The perfect meal. Retweet if you would eat this. #tidepods #tidepod
HEY GRONK, IS EATING TIDE PODS EVER A GOOD IDEA?
Parody
Please don't eat Tide pods!

Please don't eat tide pods or any kind of laundry pods! Eat bananas like Ivan instead! Don't even pretend to eat tide pods. If you swallow the liquid it can burn your esophagus. This is really dangerous! People have been killed by ingesting this stuff. I told Rowan and Ivan never to try this ever again.
the Tide Pod Freakout is what happens when we report on memes like they're real life and don't take into account Meme Logic™ and then make real people think it's actually happening thereby creating what the meme was joking about to begin with Virality
9 Tactics that All Content Publishers Need to A/B Test

By Claire Vo
July 29, 2015
experiment engine, Experiment Ideas, Media

Publishing websites engage audiences with content aimed to keep users on the site longer, encourage users to read more pages, and turn users into loyal subscribers. To improve these sites, companies need to A/B test ways to enhance user interaction with the content. By optimizing, they’re able to maximize the influence of each article, photo, video, and more to provide a more captivating site experience.

These experiment-worthy tactics drive readers to interact with your publishing site:

Remove Text from the Trending Section

Displaying trending content together is not a new method, but testing its presentation can be a game-changer. Some ideas:

1. Placement: Move text within the article to the side or the top.
2. Image Type: Experiment with different image types to see which performs better.
3. Formatting: Try different font sizes or styles to see what resonates with your audience.

By testing these elements, you can identify what works best for your audience and increase engagement on your publishing site.

Similar Tactics

1. Experimentation: Test different colors, fonts, and images to see which performs best.
2. Lead Magnets: Use testing to find the best way to encourage readers to subscribe.
3. Call-to-Actions: Test different CTAs to see which gets the most clicks.

By utilizing A/B testing and experimentation, you can improve the performance of your publishing site and drive more engagement from your audience.
FREE Lion Bracelet For The Next 24 Hours Only!

LIONS JEWEL

WELCOME TO

Lions Jewel

SHOP NOW
Featured Collection

FREE Golden Black Matte Lion Bracelet – $0

Gold Plated Lion Necklace – $49.99

Stylish Lion Hoodie – $79.99
Fake news
Pope Francis Shocks World, Endorses Donald Trump for President, Releases Statement

TOPICS:  Pope Francis Endorses Donald Trump
Boris fed the baby, I would make food and then the next day. When I was done, I went to drink coffee and check new articles, post ideas, on my website, and show...
2 kids dressed as 'tall man' unable to gain admission to 'Black Panther'

‘Peace Derby’ stopped after nine red cards

Plans drawn up for world's tallest wooden skyscraper

Where are the students? Manipur minister finds goats in classrooms on surprise visit

SNP councillor Chris McEleny insists that Labour council leader is in fact a 'dick' @ClickHole So who decides if news is fake? Suckinberg? No thanks. If I can't tell if something is fake or not it's my fault for being an idiot.